Claim 7 is allowed.

Claim 4 is objected to as being dependent upon a rejected base claim, but would be allowable if rewritten in independent form including all of the limitations of the base claim and any intervening claims.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

Claims 1, 2, 3 and 5 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Forbes.

Forbes discloses a bag member which comprises an enclosure having a bottom a removable top curving lateral sides enclosing as broadly claimed foam material (3) which considered by the examiner as padding material, which in turn can and does insulate bottles of various sizes (see col. 4, lines 44-60).

In regard to claim 5 note strap 20.

In regard to claim 3 poly-vinyl is considered as being a sub-product of polyethylene.

The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Art Unit: 3764

Claim 6 is rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Forbes in view of Skinner et al.

The examiner notes that it would have been obvious to one of ordinary skill in the art to manufacture the single strap of Forbes as a plurality of straps in view of the plurality of straps of Skinner et al, or to include an additional strap for the purpose of providing a carrying handle to the device of Forbes.

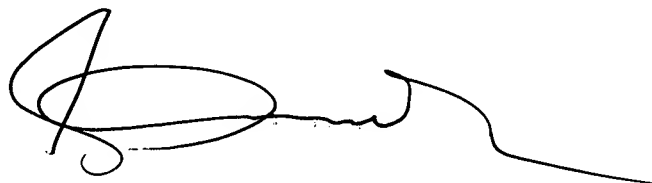

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure. Note the use of bottle members in the art of exercising (See Belekin et al, Roth, Passer and Kelley et al.

Note the overall structure of the device of Fields et al.
